

MY BRAIN COMPANION

The Brain Before the Day

A 31-Day Neuro-Affirming Journal

How much of myself do I have available today?

Notice first. Then decide what today can hold.

Welcome

This journal is not a productivity test and it is not a 31-day challenge to fix yourself. It is an invitation to notice your energy, capacity, brain state, nervous-system needs and the environments that help you function well.

There are no missed days, no streaks to break and nothing to catch up on. Use words, colour, scribbles, symbols or leave spaces blank. The question at the heart of every page is simple: how much of myself do I have available today?

The 31-Day Journey

Days 1–5	NOTICE	What is happening in my brain and body?
Days 6–10	UNDERSTAND	What gives and takes my energy?
Days 11–15	RESPOND	What helps when my capacity changes?
Days 16–20	PROTECT	What demands, environments and boundaries affect me?
Days 21–25	NOURISH	What restores, regulates and energises me?
Days 26–30	KNOW MYSELF	What patterns am I beginning to recognise?
Day 31	MY BRAIN & ME	What have I learned about myself?

Built as part of MettleNest's Neurodivergent Support resources, alongside the BRIDGE Method.

My Brain Map

A place to gather what you have noticed. This is not a final answer; it is a snapshot of what you understand about yourself right now.

My early signs of overload

Things that quietly drain me

Things that restore me

Environments where I function well

Things I need more time for

Things I need less of

Ways I communicate when overwhelmed

What helps me begin

What helps me stop

What helps me transition

People who feel safe

Things I wish others understood about me

Things I am beginning to understand about myself

I'M BEGINNING TO UNDERSTAND HOW MY BRAIN WORKS.

Not by judging it.

By noticing it.

By listening to it.

By learning what helps.

How much of myself do I have available today?
